Comments: I hope that during your consideration of new management plans for the Grand Mesa, Uncompahgre, and Gunnison National Forests, you give considerable weight to the general public that relies on these areas for hunting, fishing, hiking, and camping. I am particularly interested in keeping the human impact on the area minimal, e.g. few roads and few motor vehicles. While resource extraction on public land is important, the enjoyment of natural settings by the general public is what makes America great and what is under threat, necessitating greater protection.
