Comments: I love the "Granite Basin": area and have visited it many times. I have hiked numerous trails in the area and every one of them were pristine and peaceful. I have camped in the Cement creek campground and love it there. Even though it is only 3 miles from Crested Butte South, it feels like you are far away from any kind of civilization and that you are "one with nature". If it is in the power of the USFS to preserve this area I would urge you to do so. You would be saving such a beautiful and pristine area not only for my generation but for many generations to come. Please give this project the serious and important consideration it deserves. It would be the last opportunity for keeping the wilderness areas in the Gunnison basin intact and pristine as they now are and something to tell your grand kids that you had a part in saving this beautiful place.
