Comments: I have been snowmobiling for over 16 years in the Stanislaus National Forest. I love being out in nature with family and friends. We ride out and spend time at a friends cabin in Eagle Meadows. It is so peaceful and relaxing. I don't understand why you want to close off the forest to riders. We don't harm anything. Several environmental studies have been done in Yellowstone and none of them have ever proven that snowmobiling is bad for the environment.
