Comments: I am in favor of restricting "OSV" access as proposed. Recreational use of snowmobiles should be restricted to areas where they do not affect wildlife, skiers, and cannot endanger anyone. (I have observed a number of hairy encounters between snow-shoers or skiers and some reckless snowmilers, especially juveniles. IMO a drivers licence should be a requirement, and some safe-handling education in addition.)

Another consideration is the environmental impact of the noise and smell/emissions many snowmobiles produce. This is a key issue that should be addressed, preferably by requiring a certain level of modern technology related to noise and pollution standards, e.g. no two-stroke engines and quiet mufflers.
