Comments: I am an avid hiker and do not own a snowmobile, but have a few friends that do. From what I've heard from them, public lands for snowmobiling have been increasingly restricted for quite some time now. These people have such a passion for their sport, and they are really worried that eventually they will have no place to ride. With it being so restricted already, I don't think it's really fair to continue in this direction. Public lands should be available for everyone to use in a responsible manner with no one group forcing another one out. What if there were more snowmobilers than hikers and they tried to ban all non-motorized transportation? It doesn't really seem right to me.
