Comments: The forest should be for the people and not constrained by some outdated timeline that Steals future generations of basic rights from this region. Children have enough setbacks in today's fast-paced world leave outlets for them in the future to get into the backcountry in the winter and enjoy it .

This is the only way that I am able to share the forest with my father who now has a disability. Keeping disabled people with access and older people like me access to the back country should be a right.

my legs can't always carry me but I love my time in the forest .
