To whom it may concern:

I love snowmobiling because it is a great way to get outdoors and experience nature in the winter. Snowmobiling is a great way to get to places where no one has been before and to see incredible sights. Snowmobiling is a beautiful and great way to explore nature. In fact you can't even tell when a snowmobiler has been there once the snow has melted. Snowmobiling is one of the most unique ways of experiencing nature and I love the forest and understand why the environmentalist want to protect it but by denying us access to it you are also keeping us from experiencing it. When we snowmobile we are not out there to harm nature we are out there to enjoy it and to explore it. Please do not limit our access.

Sincerely,

Anthony Wildenberg
