Comments: Hello,

I would like to make a general comment about the Land Management Plan. I support allowing people to use land, which means practical access to as much as is reasonable. That means not just raw square miles of land, but the proximity of the land to folks that live in Anchorage.

I support users of all types, including bikes and snowmobiles. Through education, I believe users can be responsible regardless of mode of transportation. Snowmobiling is the only way I personally can access many areas of this great state, and biking opens up many more summer-time possibilities to me, considering how much more distance I can cover. This affects me on a very personal basis.

I hope that the Forest Service makes a decision with proper consideration of all the diversity in people and activities that is Alaska.
