Comments: I ask that you do everything that you can to protect this land from the greed and avarice of far too many people who feel as though they are entitled to take whatever they can rather than seeking to preserve this land for generations of unborn Americans yet to come. A truly conservative approach to land management is one that preserves land and denies the sense of entitlement that leads many to think that our natural lands exist for the sole purpose of producing profit for immediate gratification of those who wish to exploit all that they can now without regard for the future.
