Comments: My husband and I have traveled to Alaska twice. The first trip was just over seven years ago from our home in Maryland through southern Canada into Alaska. Our second trip was just over a year later on a cruise ship out of Seattle, Washington through southeastern Alaska as far as Kodiak. Before and since those times we watch on television many of the Alaskan reality shows that represent Alaska's beauty and residents way of life. It is absolutely essential Alaska remains free from destruction of the beauty and indigenous lifestyle that currently exists so future generations as well as those who have not yet been able to travel to Alaska can experience and enjoy. The beauty in our country is more important than lining corporations and individuals pocketbooks.
