Comments: As an Alaskan I thrive on the idea that we are the last frontier. As a people and state as a whole we operate under the belief that we are free. We are able to be ourselves, whether that be hunting, fishing, trapping or riding. We are Alaskans and love our lives that boast of our ability to be absorbed with nature. We are a unique people who love live and thrive under the midnight sun and northern lights. We are happy positive people who love our stars due to our freedoms- such as having one area to explore and be one with the land- if you take that away we are not the great state we boast of. We are not the people we claim to be. We are the last frontier- we are Alaskans.
