Comments: My name is Jacob Craig, I grew up in Petersburg, AK and I spent my childhood in the Tongass National Forest. My family and I recreated, harvested, and made memories within the boundaries of that national forest and when I moved to Anchorage in 2011 I found the nearby Chugach National Forest to be a great link to home. I enjoy many activities within the Chugach National Forest; hiking, snowboarding, snowshoeing, AND snowmobiling. I have ridden snowmobiles with friends and family since the 8th grade and it is, and continues to be, my favorite recreational activity. The Chugach National Forest is a beautiful area, and the people who access it via snowmobile get to see truly amazing parts of the Forest. Snowmobiling opportunities in the CNF bring people, friends and family, together to create memories, connect with the land, and enjoy themselves within the public lands of the United States. The CFN is truly irreplaceable to the snowmobile community of Southcentral Alaska. I officially oppose the movement to restrict motorized access to the Chugach National Forest.
