Comments: Being a lifelong Alaskan I like to enjoy the many seasons we have. And snowmobiling in the winter is something I love to do. I have never used the CNF riding areas and may never use it. Just don't want all the people riding there to move over to my areas. I don't see why an essential part of Alaskan transportation should be cut off from traveling in a certain area. Snowmobiles leave less of a imprint on land then hikers do so I don't understand that argument. And snowmobiles leave wonderful trails that both skiers and hikers get to enjoy.

Hope this helps you guys make your decision.
