Comments: To whom it may concern,

Shutting down certain areas to snowmachining in the Chugiach mountains and Kenai peninsula that are currently open is a shame. This is an Alaskan activity that so many people enjoy. These are very popular areas that people ride. I personally do not because of where I live. I ride mostly Hatcher's pass and more northern areas when I'm not racing the Iron Dog. With that said, closing the doors to certain areas may affect future riding areas and possibly permitting issues with the Iron Dog. It would be much appreciated if there was an alternative to keeping these areas open.
