Comments: I support this project. As an avid skier, the last few warmer, low-snow seasons have not been what I've come to look forward to in a Colorado winter for ski conditions. I believe that the thoughtful plans delivered in this project provide a solution that would help offer more reliable conditions, even in warmer years. The new snowmaking infrastructure would modernize Vail's system, and open up the possibility of having more beginner terrain open earlier, like parts of Golden Peak. Also, this increased terrain availability could help separate skiers by ability, which would make a safer environment for everyone.
