Comments: I have been a life long Alaskan and utilize Alaska's public lands every year for myself and also with my wife and three children. We recreate by boat, foot, ATV, skis, and any other way that we can experience the lands that we all can enjoy.

Limiting the access of public lands to a certain sub-group of individuals means that the land is not public anymore. Having access to utilize these lands in any way that is deemed appropriate by the Chugach Forest Plan means that more Alaskans and more visitors can appreciate the wilderness that we also live in and near.

Please consider leaving the Chugach Forest open to motorized access and do not limit this resource to just certain individuals recreating in a certain way

Respectfully

Kyle Moffat
