Comments: Having lived in Idaho for 28 years, I have many memories of backpacking, camping, and hiking across our beautiful state. One of my favorite areas is Wildhorse Canyon in the Pioneer Mountains. Last summer I introduced new friends to the stunning beauty of Kane Lake, Boulder Lake, and Bellas Lakes. It was an emotional experience to see the awe in their eyes. I feel it is imperative that we protect our unspoiled mountain areas for future generations. The specific areas that I recommend for wilderness protection include the North Slope Pioneers, the North Lemhi Range, the South Lemhi Range, and Borah Peak. These areas have abundant natural beauty, scenic value, and opportunities for solitude. If this land is not protected, it will be lost forever.

Thank you.
