Comments: I HIGHLY oppose any change or restriction along the Samon / Challis range. There are hundreds of miles of our public lands that are not accessible without motorized travel. As a country we are moving away from things that define who we are as Americans. Exploring the great outdoors and the history of the western states would be near impossible without motorized vehicles. Camping, recreating, hunting and all of these things are FAR MORE important than gaming and obesity. Let's not make it more difficult for future generations to enjoy and explore the great state of Idaho. The only change that should be introduced is: Get off the fucking couch and shut down the damn computer. If it comes down to an issue with motorized travel, why don't we just shut down the interstate? Seems reasonable right? Pure idiocracy. Please continue to allow use of our public lands whether you ride motorcycles, bikes, seashores or hike. We've proven all of these outdoor activities can co-exist.
