Comments: I oppose the Forest Plan Amendment that sneakily aims to make it easier to log and therefor log more in the guise of reducing impacts to aquatic ecosystems by lessening restrictions that protect threatened and endangered bats during the time of year mothers are raising their nonvolant young. I want healthy streams and healthy bats. You know what reduces detrimental impacts to aquatic ecosystems (and bats)? Fewer and smaller logging roads and less logging. The Daniel Boone is public land, and most of the public is opposed to logging public land (and whatever terminology you use such as "shelterwood harvest" that means cutting trees for money and leaving a mess of sedimentation and invasive plant thickets behind). There are better, safer, more beautiful, more ecologically friendly, and more sustainable (and even regenerative) ways to make money. Stop logging public land in the Boone.
