Comments: Custer Gallatin Forest is a highly sensitive area environmentally to the on-going protections of grizzly bears, moose and other habitat. "Life, liberty & justice for all." This statement means protecting and providing justice for all. Moose in particular are struggling. Any change in their environment will harm their survival. Humanity needs to conserve, recycle & do everything in their power to protect the species that we share our planet with. Unfortunately, the current trend is to let corporations prevail to the detriment of the environment. Case in point, wherein "Samsung" was rigging their software, so that cell phones would not work properly after two years, to in-cent consumers to purchase a new cell phone. Instead of, continue to use their current cell phone. This corporate philosophy harms the environment because precious metals are used in every cell phone. The environment has suffered for greedy profits beyond a reasonable amount. In the U.S.A. hardware was supposed to be supported by companies for seven years from date of purchase, not a mere two years. Often times, companies will make a minor modification to their technology to generate revenue without a great technological advance; only to increase sales. Again, consumers suffer because their newer equipment is not supported & the environment suffers because we are depleting the environment for the sake of "new" technology without realizing the impact to our environment and our animals. The moose deserve to roam our great lands & we do not need a new cell phone every two years. Please protect the Custer Gallatin Forest from further destruction.
