Comments: I like several different aspects of the proposed plans. I am going to mix and match certain alternatives. I am a outdoor person both in the winter and the summer months here in Montana. I was born in this state and have lived here my whole life. I love to be out in the outdoors and experience the greats views/adventure this state has to offer.

With the recommended wilderness number/acres i prefer the Alternative A or E. The wilderness is tough for adventure seekers like me trying to get more access in the deep back woods. The majority of people out there wouldn't even dare to try and get this far out in the back country. Currently this access is blocked to motorized vehicles and restricts our access. I feel that we need more backcountry access.

I like the Alternative B, C, E for recreation emphasis area acres.

The Stillwater complex acres are important for many jobs and local economy. Acres allowed here gives security for local and state persons.

Winter time is typically my slow time for me and my company. Snowmobiling is a great way to get into the backcountry without harming the trails. I believe winter motorized recreation use is very important for our state and our local economy here in Big Timber.

I am not as clear with Bison or sheep but i would believe having a plan for both would be highly recommended. No plan would state ignorance to the matter at hand.

Connectivity would also be a nice key to have in this proposed plan.
