Comments: While the most important area to protect for me is the Tongue River Breaks that should remain as natural as possible. The other areas you are reviewing are important as a natural area. The main focus is that once you allow development of any kind, it cannot revert back to its roots. The mechanized or motor use within what is now a wilderness is again something that cannot be brought back to its natural state. There are plenty of areas for four wheelers and mountain bikes to go and destroy the land. I am also a mountain biker, so I know the damage they can do.

Thank You,
