Comments: I have been a resident of SW Colorado for over 50 years. This area is growing rapidly with not always the best for the environment as part of the planning. Protecting habitat, the environment and adding wilderness should be, in my opinion, the priorities of the National Forest Service. As a society, we need places that restore and refresh us. Places where the sounds of society are non existent. The earth needs places where it is not invaded by us, where nature is allowed to do its "thing" without interference.
