Comments: More standards of protection for natural resources need to be included in the Plan. Additional areas with wilderness characteristics need to be considered. Timber harvest should not be allowed in lynx habitat. Protecting big game should be mandatory, not voluntary, in order to be successful. Data needs to be maintained on sensitive species. Scott Tipton's plan is incomplete, while the CORE Act is more comprehensive in protecting western slope resources that are not only critical to wildlife, but also to the tourism, hunting, and organic agriculture and viticulture that make Colorado's economy strong and stable.
