Comments: As a past resident of AZ and soon to be a resident again, I believe no action should be taken in closing ANY public roads. Arizona is our families favorite state with so much diversity and restricting access to these areas is wrong. Yes, people argue that you can hike in to see these areas but that will turn into closure of areas all together. It also restricts public access to people who can not walk or have difficulty walking long distances. Example, my son is a heart transplant recipient but absolutely loves being out in nature. This would limit the available areas that he is able to access. I say no roads should or need to be closed and they should remain open.
