Comments: I support the USFS taking zero action. This means leaving open all trails and roads that are open currently. Stage II roads see less visitors, and impact the surrounding area and animals much less than stage I however many people enjoy the extra challenge these roads provide. It also allows people to get further away from the RV'ers and massive crowds that frequent the easier accessed spots. Many of us will have little reason to visit the ASN if hundreds of miles of roads are closed every study period.
