Comments: It is my understanding that the Forest Service plans to close the "user created access roads" to campsites in the forest that are more than 300' from a road. This would effectively close these campsites to anyone using a motor home or trailer for camping. When my mom and dad take my 3 year old camping, I trust that it is in a safe area away from cars and traffic. My dad recently purchased a camper to have the necessary things available for a weeks stay. It would be impossible any other way. These campsites have been used for years by my dad, who has lived in the area for over a decade and been camping there far longer. The user-created roads to these sites should remain open for all users. Not including these "user-created access roads" will effectively close many of the camping areas in the Forest, which I find appalling.

Thank you for your consideration.
