Comments: In response to the proposed Apache Sitgreaves National Forest Travel Management Plans for AZ F.R.300, There is no significant research that would provide the catalyst to make any modifications to the current plan. In the case that a lack of federal resources is expected, it is not appropriate to set new boundary conditions for land management plans. I join my fellow Americans is saying simply, "Keep the our lands as they are". I support a no-action alternative. We do not need any local, state, or federal entity policing our natural lands. We Americans depend (and is in fact a natural right) on navigating freely. We are the benefactors of the workers before us and do not need you telling us (through unscrupulous methods) what we may do (or can't do) with our land.
