Comments: I am contacting you regarding your effort to extend roads and logging into the pristine of Alaska. I do not live in Alaska, but I have a sister who does and I have visited her there. I was enchanted by the beauty of the state, and the forests reminded me of the Oregon of my childhood. Logging has taken away many of the beautiful forests that I camped in as a youngster. This area is one of the last undisturbed areas in our country. Respect the land. The forests supply us with invaluable oxygen as they clear the carbon from the air. The survival of these undeveloped areas parallel the survival of all living things on the earth. Global warming is real. I respectfully request that you take steps to preserve this unspoiled land.
