Comments: Over the past five decades our family have traveled the back roads through all forty eight continental states and Alaska. And the one thing that was most disturbing was the very large amounts of clear cutting of trees in those states that had substantial forests eliminating important ecosystems and causing areas of visual desolation.

However in these times of climate chaos events increasing in frequency and intensity the need to keep all forest undisturbed to help minimize these future events.

In addition several years ago scientists reports that their studies had revealed our planet is experiencing its sixth Great Extinction and areas like Tongass National Forest being logged would reduce important numbers of species.

So I and my family request that logging in the Tongass National Forest not be approved now and anytime in the near futures.
