

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 10/21/2019 8:00:00 AM

First name: Elena

Last name: Carlana

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The Alaskan wilderness needs to stay as roadless as it is currently, for the sake of the ecosystem and wildlife. Trees sustain more damage when exposed to roads. Rivers and streams sustain more runoff damage. We need to keep wild spaces protected for our children, not use everything up. Especially old-growth forests that have been kept pristine so far need to stay that way for their historical integrity. Native inhabitants (i.e., Eskimos) should have the final say on what happens to their land.

[Position]

[Position]