Comments: I'm opposed to this because it will open up for logging the forest and we can't afford to lose any of it on this planet. the forest is our only hope to survive on this planet. Especially since the Amazon fires! Trees take in the CO2 and produce O2, we just lost 20% . Old growth forest take in a lot more than anything else! This path of taking down the forest for money is not worth it! Something has to be preserved for there to be life on the planet and it can't grow back fast enough to do what it's doing now. You are dooming life on this planet if you do this! We can't plant enough trees that will reach maturity fast enough. Just planting trees is not enough anyway. Old growth forest have an entire ecosystem that is at stake even if you only cut some of them. Save something for the wildlife to survive for the love of God, they are in danger of extinction , and so are humans if you don't stop making it easy to take down the forest! Don't do it! You will regret it! Save something in this world for nature to survive! Your own survival depends on it too!
