Comments: Please keep all of the rules in place. The environment is already suffering in so many ways and Alaska remains a protected place. Altering this rule disrespects the wish of every tribal government and it is clear that there isn't even a guarantee that the timber industry would get any benefit from the exemption of this rule.

Road building in that area would endanger the wellbeing and habitats of salmon and deer and would threaten the food supply of many tribal nations.

We continue to destroy so many habitats and are responsible for mass extinction of species on the planet. Please keep the rule in place and take action from a place of compassion and heart, not greed!
