Comments: I would like to express my objection to the USDA Forest Service Alaska rule making #54511. Humankind does not have the full understanding and knowledge to adequately and properly "manage" any ecosystem. We are not omnipotent and the valuable Tongass National Forest provides numerous benefits as it is to humans and critical species it is home to. Humankind has wrought enough damage and degradation to every part of the world we have touched or tried to manage. It is time for good stewardship of the remaining natural ecosystems and reparations to those areas damaged.
