Comments: Roadless rule

Keep roads out of the Tongass. The US has a fraction of intact, primary forest left. There is no good market for Tongass timber. the highest and best use of this forest is to remain what it is, our largest intact primary rainforest.

The Forest Service can't afford to maintain the roads it has, let alone new roads built in difficult terrain. Do the right thing here. Leave well enough alone, and manage the Tongass for fish, wildlife, water, and recreation.
