Comments: $30,000,000 loss per year for the Tongass National Forest? & people want to open up even more acreage, which will increase losses for the USFS, does not seem like smart policy to me, hell, even my 16 & 12 yo children would be able to determine that isnt smart policy. I am against opening up the Tongass National Forest for that reason & for the sheer stubbornness of sound conservation policy that has been the hallmark of those that came before us, such as Muir, Roosevelt, Adams, Thoreau, Pope & Young, etc. Moose, blacktail deer, brown/black bear, all five species of salmon, & much more all thrive in this ecosystem, & many people in the surrounding areas depend on this wildlife to sustain a culture of subsistence, that could have HUGE detrimental impacts on the above populations of wildlife that locals, national & international hunters & fishermen spend BILLIONS of dollars on, in this CROWN JEWEL of ALASKA! Please! Keep the Tongass untouched! Were borrowing this asset from future generations & this, untouched, will reap untold dividends for EONS!
