Comments: The Tongass belongs to us all as united states citizens resident and tourist who buy hunting and fishing licenses in the state and people with extended families in Alaska alike. Traveling to Alaska for vacations and with big dollars and you cant get out to see it. A few well placed roads make common sense for access and controlled logging so the wild fires like the ones this summer near Seward can be handled more easily controlled and not just left to burn. forest managers did poor job of management in those areas over previous year that needed to be burned selectively. !If a plane goes down it allows possible rescues and emergency service response during inclement weather where helicopters cant fly! Some scientific access and recreation like bird and wildlife watching for people with disabilities!
