

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 10/20/2019 8:00:00 AM

First name: Jordan

Last name: Krock

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Once the forest is gone, it's gone. Even if you log it and leave it alone, it would take well over 120 years for that forest to recover. GENERATIONS of people that could have been hiking, fishing, kayaking, camping, Hunting, and spending $$$$$ in the process to eat and lodge over 120 years. I'm only mentioning this because ya'll probably only care about the monetary aspect of the forest in the first place. 120 years of $$$ from ecotourism that goes into many small companies or the small one time payment for a logging company and then the land is dead and useless for 120 years.

[Position]

[Position]