

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 10/20/2019 8:00:00 AM

First name: Jane

Last name: Salmon

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The Tongass National Forest is an important and vital part of the ecosystem in Alaska. Home to many threatened and endangered species, it's essential to preserve it from development. Trees are vital to combatting climate change. We need to protect our forests in order to counteract carbon pollution. Do not open this area to logging, if you value clean, breathable air.

[Position]

[Position]