Comments: I say no to removing Roadless status for National Forest Lands in Alaska, these natural forests provide life, economy and well being to the people and animals of our great northern state. The United States is threatened by over logging and oil production, what we'll have as a country when all our natural lands are gone? Where will all the wildlife go? Once our biodiversity has fallen due to logging and other business dealings, the United States will have nothing to offer except greed and polluted waters.
