Comments: To destroy a treasure thousands of years to form just to make a quick buck for a considerable few is selfish. Its also frankly treacherous to the intent of a long lasting republic the founding fathers of the United Stated had envisioned. The country has lasted this long, and flourished without the need to exhaust all its resources but the current administration randomly decides to backtrack previous administrations to help America? No. We are essentially printing money out of the forests weve left alone to posterity for political gain. What would Rome be if it sold the stones from the coliseum and its monuments for a short sited endeavor?
