Comments: There will never be enough over site if the logging that will take place here. Animals will suffer, local people whom rely on said animals will suffer. These are areas that can not be replaced by new growth forest. The eco system will be forever changed. And in a negative way I fear. I live in Louisiana, and I have seen these type projects and actions destroy places that were refuges for animals. Places that have now been made uninhabitable by many animals that once thrived there. Please reconsider your thoughts on opening the forest up to logging. Especially if it is for monetary gain. Considering there has been significant loss by current logging.
