

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 10/22/2019 8:00:00 AM

First name: Bradley

Last name: Pickerel

Organization: None

Title:

Comments: I oppose logging into the tongass national forest for the main reason of one-third of the planet's virgin temperate rainforest- the largest remaining single expanse- is the tongass national forest on the se coast of Alaska. The tongass which shelters the world's largest concentration of bald Eagles, grizzly bears is seriously threatened by logging. This area is habitat to major salmon spawning as well. ONLY <1% of temperate rainforest remain in the world. Enough is enough with destroyed coastal rainforest. Over 430,000 miles of roads, more than 8 times the miles in interstate highway system, cut through US National forests. NO MORE ROADS.....

[Position]

[Position]