Comments: These national forests and resources we hold as a collective public should not be given away to private corporations to reap the benefits and profits from.

Ideally I'd like to see national forests stay completely removed from use by private companies, if roads are to be built for access by the public such as hunters or hikers or scientists studying these environments then so be it. I could even see it acceptable that the government do some controlled logging of these forests to supplement wood supply in the country as long as it is the government who profits from the sales and not private companies because at least in that case the profits can be used for the public instead of lining the coffers of some single CEO or business man.

All in all though these forests should be left as they are and not disturbed.
