Comments: To whom it may concern:

I am opposed to any alternative to the roadless rule that allows for the potential development of roads providing access to one of our nation's last remaining tracts of old growth forest. These relics of biodiversity and carbon sequestration are more valuable to the public than any economic value that the lumber may hold. Please preserve the ecological services that old growth forests provide! Do not allow roads and extraction to eliminate that which maintains Alaska as America's Frontier.

Sincerely,

Sim Barrow
