Comments: I worked for the forest service on the apache sitgreaves back in 1970 when they still actively managed the forest by logging running cattle keeping roads open. It was about this time that the government started closing off section of the forest thus limiting the areas for the public access and over time with roads closed when there were fires they were hard to access and helped to burn large sections of the forest. This is what California is going thru today. Keep the roads open reopen ones that have been close, open the forest back to logging and let the public have access to our forest.
