Comments: Please do not remove these lands from the "roadless rule". The Tongass National Forest is an old-growth rainforest. Protecting rainforests - not opening them up to economic exploitation - should be your top priority. We should be planting more trees, not cutting them down. Forests such as Tongass are the lungs of the planet. Old-growth forests are carbon sinks, and cutting them down would only hasten the effects of global warming. Forests are a public good that must be maintained for the benefit of all humanity. Alternative 1 is the only logical choice for this proposed rule. Protect the forests, protect the environment, protect biodiversity, and protect humanity!
