Comments: I strongly oppose and object to the proposed change of legislation allowing increased logging operations in Alaska. Our current forestry practices are not sustainable enough to apply them to these precious public lands. Public lands belong to the American public and it is completely wrong for private industry to profit off of their exploitation. Alaska's forests are too important to sacrifice their long-term health for short-term corporate profit. All scientific data, evidence, and consensus points to logging operations and deforestation as a major contributor to climate change, species extinction, and long-term negative impacts on local economies. These proposed changes are not in the best interest of the American citizens. Please stop these antiquated multi-national industries from ruining America's future!
