Comments: Hunter numbers aren't decreasing in the west so we need as much public land to opened to the people of this state and others that pay a premium for out of state tags. The public land discussion will come to an end when we've come to a point where we start bumping into one another enough in the woods. I put 40+ days in for big game in Montana, I know where the elk are and when your trying to rule out the 90% where they are not you have to trim down the 10% left between public and private. Those folks that own land around those mountains have plenty of critters running around on their land. Let the rest of us access at least the scraps that have been left.
