Comments: It is not in the interest of this forest or any of us to allow roads to be developed in this forest. Doing so is a betrayal of the reason these forests exist, which is because they are one of the few areas we have managed not to destroy, and to allow wildlife to flourish. Allowing protected forests to live without encroachment benefits all of us who live on this planet, as we rely on a healthy global ecosystem so that we can have a habitable world, able to provide us food, as well as clean water and air. Encroaching on these previously untampered wild areas presents a great danger to us, especially for a forest as critically important as those in the arctic. Please do not allow the development of roads, or for that matter any other human structure, in this area.
